AbeloHost offers offshore hosting solutions to guarantee complete privacy for customers, and is emerging as a market leader thanks to flexible, scalable packaging.Amsterdam, Netherlands - March 14, 2017 /MarketersMedia/ -- Online privacy is never out of the headlines these days, and this has left both private citizens and businesses looking to protect their sensitive data. Unfortunately, even governments themselves are starting to pass laws giving themselves unfettered access to people's private communications and online storage, meaning many in the US, UK and other major markets must look abroad. AbeloHost (Offshore Hosting) provides highly secure and legally protected server space in the Netherlands, and is now emerging as the market leader thanks to their fully scalable packages.

For those who want to protect their data from prying eyes, shared servers offer a way to keep data out of the hands of government snoopers. For the best privacy however, virtual private servers and dedicated private servers can even help people and businesses surf the web without having to worry who might be trying to access or interrupt their communications. They can also provide full server management, and even web design services.

Their servers are leading the field because they have comprehensive physical and digital protections in place, as well as legal protection by Dutch law. The servers themselves make use of the latest solid state arrays, allowing for incredible size and speed at affordable prices, with their SSD Shared hosting offering the best possible cost-benefit for clients.

A spokesperson for AbeloHost explained, "We are pleased to be able to help people all over the world to protect their private data. We offer full DDOS protection, website migration, backup services and even server collation, ensuring every aspect of cyber security is taken care of for clients. With incredibly high speeds available, individuals are able to continue to get the best possible performance while benefiting from the latest protections. We are happy to be emerging as a leader in the industry, and look to cement this position in 2017."

About AbeloHost: AbeloHost offers a wide range of private server services to individuals throughout the world. Located in the Netherlands, they are able to provide international clients with guaranteed Total Data Privacy, Data Security, and a Wide Range of Content Acceptability. All hardware is privately owned and inaccessible other than by the AbeloHost team and datacenter personnel. Dutch regulations protect the privacy of all stored data in the Netherlands, ensuring customers have full legal security.
