

Demon's 114ci Performance Motorcycle Engine Has Proved Its Reliability

Demon's 114ci motor has proven its claim to be the most reliable custom motorcycle engine on the market.

December 15, 2009 (FPRC) -- Fort Lauderdale - Demon's Cycle Inc., the Florida based custom motorcycle company, is pleased to announce that after 18 months of strong sales its 114ci performance motorcycle engine has lived up to its claims of durability and reliability. In partnership with Ultima, the popular manufacturer of high performance custom motors, Demon's Cycles have built an engine with less piston speed and so less wear on the cylinder walls and pistons skirts and so greater reliability.

The new 114ci high performance custom motorcycle engine went into production last year and claimed reliability not seen in the high performance market before. All the major components of motor are made out of quality parts and materials chosen for durability in mind.

The great test of reliability claims is time. 18 months has passed since the production begun and Demon's 114ci is taking the world of custom bike building by storm. Sales of the motor exceeded all the expectations and has received only compliments about its performance and reliability.

"When I read the engines specs and saw its price I thought that it would be perfect for my custom built drag bike," said Joe Siemose a 12 year veteran of motorcycle drag racing. "I usually go through motors faster then I want, it's the nature of my sport, but it has been just over a year with Demon's 114 and I haven't blown it yet. It's amazing! It seems to be indestructible and it's giving me all the torque I was looking for. Maybe I can blow it up next year, I will keep on trying."

Demon's Cycle and Ultima are very pleased with all the data and feedback they are getting from customers. They are planning to keep up the high level of production and sales to satisfy the needs of the motorcycle market for the first high performance custom engine that has proven to be reliable and trouble free.
