Dee Nesch, the former professional bodybuilder, has tried several different makes of carbon bike and she has found that Stradalli is the best and fastest.

December 23, 2009 (FPRC) -- The Stradalli Cycle Company, the manufacturer of high performance carbon bicycles, is pleased to announce that Dee Nesch, the former professional bodybuilder and Florida resident, rides a full carbon Stradalli road bicycle for her daily cardio workout and for competitive cycling.

Stradalli's goal is to bring professional level equipment and technology to the cost conscious cyclist without compromising performance, weight, resistance or quality. One of their recent revolutionary bikes, the Milano Strada-PRO, has a frame weight of just 997g while the fork weight comes in at under 400g. To keep costs low, the Stradalli Cycle Company sells directly to the public without the need for wholesalers and retailers, this allows Stradalli to sell the best quality cycling equipment at affordable prices.

Dee Nesch, who is originally from Germany, came to fame as a professional bodybuilder during the 1990's. Now living in Florida she works as a personal trainer, holds boot camps on the sunny south Florida beaches and runs fitness camps on Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines. As a professional athlete Dee knows the difference between good and excellent. "I have ridden many carbon bikes from Specialized, Trek and Canondale and they are all very pleasing, but for the last year I have been riding a Stradalli and it is the best and fastest carbon bike I have ever ridden."

It could almost be said that the Stradalli Cycle Company has a mania for cycling and building bicycles for the keen athlete just like Dee Nesch. Their experienced design team is made up of high-tech design and manufacturing specialists with over 15 years of experience in designing and making race quality motorcycle components combined with cyclists with over forty years of competitive cycling experience.
