

Professional Mercedes Benz SLS GT3 AMG Race Driver Buys Special Edition Stradalli Bicycle

Dominik Baumann buys a special edition Stradalli Como full carbon road race bike for training and competition.

March 19, 2012 (FPRC) -- Pompano Beach, Florida - Stradalli Cycle, the high performance carbon bicycle manufacturer, would like to congratulate professional race driver Dominik Baumann on the purchase of his special edition Stradalli Como full carbon road race bike. As a true athlete and competitor Stradalli Cycle are proud to supply Dominik with one of the best carbon fiber bikes in the world.

19-year-old Baumann is one of the youngest professional Mercedes Benz SLS drivers in the world, and last year proved himself to be the "surprise man" of the season. Racing for HEICO Motorsport, Dominik is a true athlete, in the car and out. He plans to use his new Stradalli as part of his training and when possible for competition.

"Dominik is a young, ambitious professional racing driver who is used to pushing his Mercedes Benz to its limits," said Thomas Steinbacher of Stradalli. "Now with his Stradalli he can push his body harder and get the best road racing bicycle performance."

The Stradalli Como has been updated and released for 2012 as the Stradalli Napoli. It is made of high-modulus carbon fiber with a 3K weave. Utilizing BB30 technology SRAM group and internal cable routing, it is one of Stradalli's best and yet most affordable race bikes.

Baumann, who was trained by Michael Schumacher, will be watched keenly by all the staff at Stradalli. They wish him every success in his Mercedes Benz SLS AMG and on his Stradalli bike.
