

The John Palmer Art Gallery & Studio Hosts a Hilarious 2012 Collectors' Night!

Artist John Ross Palmer has a tradition of honoring his cherished art collectors each September with an amazingly fun, exclusive Collectors' Night at his Historic Heights Art Gallery that features a rousing game of John Ross Palmer Jeopardy.

January 6, 2013 (FPRC) -- On Saturday, September 8, 2012, the John Palmer Art Gallery & Studio hosted its 5th Annual Collectors' Night and the Third Competition of the unique and good-humored John Ross Palmer Jeopardy Game! Attended by throngs of collectors and their art-loving friends, the fun event provided plenty of laughs at the thought-provoking and amusing question-and-answer contest based on the life, accomplishments, travels and habits of Escapism Founder Artist John Ross Palmer. This year's John Ross Palmer Jeopardy contestants were: inaugural First Class Club Member Julio Montano, Palmer friend and Faces collector Terry Hamman and inaugural F.C.C. Member and 2011 Vallone Award Finalist Scott Hill. Terry Hamman was the winner of this year's contest and took home a one-of-a-kind John Ross Palmer painting as his prize.

This annual event is always slam-packed at the John Palmer Art Gallery & Studio because the exclusive invitation only crowd is treated to great incentive pricing on Palmer art and merchandise. Long-time collectors are also honored by allowing them to bring new friends and faces to the art gallery--with the hopes of expanding Palmer's already-massive world-wide art collector database. Artist John Ross Palmer says of the superb soiree, "I'm so honored to have collectors that maintain interest in all that I'm up to! They know me better than I do!" Gallery co-owner and Attorney Ryan Lindsay adds, "I continue to improve with my role as Alex Trebek. I always have a blast quizzing the art collectors on their knowledge of The Hardest Working Man in the Art Business."
