

Stradalli 2014 Phantom II is Proving to be an Ideal Bike for Triathlon and Iron Man Competitions

Stradalli Cycle reports that the Phantom II full carbon bicycle is proving to be an impressive choice for Triathlon and Iron Man athletes.

April 8, 2014 (FPRC) -- Miami, Florida - Stradalli Cycle, the high performance carbon bicycle manufacturer, is pleased to report that the Stradalli 2014 Phantom II is proving to be a consistent winner in Triathlon and Iron Man competitions. The Phantom II is a full carbon time trial frame from which Stradalli builds a range of time trial bikes.

Triathlons are highly competitive and grueling events which combine swimming, cycling, and running. The best Triathlon bicycles are optimized for aerodynamics, weight and power. Triathlon athletes have demonstrated that the Phantom II's design is highly beneficial. The bike has an efficient aerodynamic design which reduces drag and offers some of the lowest levels of frontal surface area on the market today.

Most Triathlon events don't allow the athletes to draft (stay in the slipstream of other riders), something that is permitted in other road racing events. This means that Triathletes who use the Phantom II can gain an advantage by as the bicycle was designed specifically to reduce wind resistance.

"When we design a bike we build it around the rider. Every design decision is based on the needs of the athletes who use our bikes" said Thomas Steinbacher, CEO of Stradalli Cycle. "The Phantom II is a perfect example of Stradalli starting with the rider and building a bike which performs exactly as the rider needs. It is light and powerful, but most of all it is incredibly aerodynamic."

The highly aerodynamic design of the Phantom II also ensures that riders spare the appropriate muscle groups needed later on in the running part of the event. Since the Phantom II is available with a range of groupsets, including the Shimano Dura Ace and the Shimano Ultegra, riders are able to increase their cadence (or pedaling rate) towards the end of the cycling segment and prepare their muscles for the upcoming run.
