May 16, 2014 (FPRC) -- We live in a time with technology at the forefront of our civilization. Modern technology allows us to express ourselves through new mediums, allows us access to information, allows us to connect with others, and so much more. The possibilities are limitless. However, when we use technology as a substitute for real life experiences, we sometimes lose the character built through this contact and subsequent participation. VirtuLessons takes these factors into consideration and thus strives for a way for the student to learn how to play an instrument while feeling as though the teacher is there with them!

VirtuLessons makes it easy to study music in the comfort and convenience of your own home by taking interactive music lessons online. The state of the art eClassrooms at VirtuLessons utilize:

- A web chat built into the eClassroom
- An interactive whiteboard where teachers and students can share music documents and write on them as needed
- The frame of each instrument that allows the teacher to highlight necessary keys/buttons
- A metronome
- A notebook for the teachers to take notes on each student. This will allow teachers to keep an updated framework of the curriculum, which is of the utmost importance in moving forward from week to week. This is helpful to students who engage in lessons with more than one teacher
- User accounts set up in a gaming fashion that allows students to earn badges and level up with experience

Everyone deserves the chance to learn an instrument, young or old, but schools have been cutting funding from this crucial subject, and it's hard to find time to compensate. Who wants to drive to a lesson studio, or set up their home for a stranger to come? What about the families that serve our country or move frequently? Our eClassroom provides high quality online instruction. You will feel as though your teacher is there with you... but safer and at your own convenience!
