

London Van MOVes Looking Forward to a 'Busy, Prosperous 2015', Says Director

Thanks to reassuring economic advancements and promising developments within the property market, this leading removals company has entered the New Year with nothing but growth on the agenda, says its Managing Director.

January 14, 2015 (FPRC) -- 2014 brought with it a much more encouraging economic landscape for the majority of small to medium sized businesses in the UK, much to the relief of our talented employers and entrepreneurs. James Young, the founder of London Van Moves, is no stranger to adversity, having survived the recent recession, but is excited to find out what the New Year has in store for his removals company, particularly now that that would-be house buyers are making the most of the changes to stamp duty that were announced in the government's Autumn statement.

'The stamp duty revisions announced by George Osborne will, in many cases, make moving home a much more affordable process for many buyers,' he says. 'We're hopeful that the new system is going to lead to a more promising and accessible property market in and around London and, in turn, increase the demand for removal services in the local area.

'Our company will continue to grow and expand in line with the growing need for professional removal services, but we also want to continue to provide an excellent level of service that our customers say sets us apart from other removal firms in London and Surrey. The renewed confidence in the property sector means our removals team are expecting a busy, prosperous 2015 that's going to be full of expansion and exciting new opportunities!'
