

Tickmill Distinguish Themselves As Swiss Franc Crisis Presents Brokerage With Opportunity

Tickmill have done outstanding work on behalf of their clients, taking advantage of volatile swings in EURCHF values and spinning the turbulence to the advantage of their clients.

San Francisco, CA, March 4, 2015 (FPRC) -- Trading brings with it inherent risk but promise of great reward. To seize advantage individuals must have a deep knowledge of the history and value of a trade yet at the same time re-evaluate its potential moment to moment. Tickmill is highly rated by scalpers and traders who use expert advisors and automated trading as their forex strategies. Tickmill team has recently shown superior risk management during Swiss Franc Crisis and stayed on the side of their clients during whole turbulent period.

When the Swiss Franc cut ties with the Euro officially, EURCHF dropped to below 1 from an early morning solid-high above 1.20. Other CHF pairs experienced similar extreme fluctuations throughout the day. CHF pair volatility was at a record high.

Many brokers failed to manage the crisis situation properly, causing requotes, rejects and contractual complications. Tickmill (who offers a forex demo or live accounts to interested parties) expertly navigated through the tempest, continuing their business as usual and even covering negative balances of clients. Encouraging their client-centered strategy, not a single re-quote was issued by Tickmill during Swiss Franc Crisis.

A spokesperson for Tickmill explained, "We have risk management at a very high level it really proved its worth during the volatility of the Swiss Franc and Euro pairing, and other associated pairings. The company was not affected by market moves also thanks Tickmill's directors, who have over 15 years of experience in the FX industry. Our clients were sending us thrilled emails at the close of trading. We hope this trend may long continue in 2015."
