

American Fly Boys Housing Reports Winner of iPad Mini Giveaway, Plans for Next Event

Facebook fan Conrad receives a 16GB iPad Mini, while top Altus crash pad company is now taking entries for another exciting giveaway to follow on April 3rd, American Fly Boys Housing reports

Altus, OK, March 9, 2015 (FPRC) -- American Fly Boys Housing announced the winner of the company's recent iPad Mini giveaway promotion. Thanks to "liking" the American Fly Boys Housing Facebook page and being selected in a random draw, entrant Conrad will receive a 16GB Apple iPad Mini wifi tablet valued at $279.00. Additionally, the company has just announced that a second iPad Mini will be given away through the same means on April 3, 2015. American Fly Boys Housing is a top provider of temporary duty housing for members of the Air Force assigned to training at the Altus Air Force Base.

"We've selected a winner in our recent iPad giveaway, and we're pleased to announce that the event was a great success," American Fly Boys Housing representative William Johnson said, "Conrad's new iPad is on its way, and we are already planning another great contest. Stay tuned to our website and Facebook page for details to come."

The home of the 97th Air Mobility Wing, an important part of the Air Force's Air Education and Training Command, Altus Air Force Base plays host to as many as 3,000 service members on temporary training postings every year. Most of these Air Force members arrive to study how to operate and work on the C-17 Globemaster III or the KC-135 Stratotanker, crucial contributors to the Air Force's transport and support capabilities, respectively.

Given the constant rotation of temporary residents into the relatively small town of Altus, finding high-quality accommodations can be a difficult task. American Fly Boys Housing is one of the most highly regarded and consistently popular providers of such term lodging, supplying comfortable, generously equipped quarters at the company's two locations to many of those who come to the area to further their skills.

Both of the company's "crash pads" are located conveniently close to the Air Force base itself, easing the daily commutes of those who choose to reside in them. From these crashpads Altus Air Force Base itself is as little as two minutes away, while the town's Walmart store, the major source of supplies in the town of 20,000 residents, is nearly as close by.

In addition to being located so conveniently, the American Fly Boys Housing units are also the crash pads Altus locals consistently recommend the most to those coming into the area for temporary duty. Hosting at most three service members at a time, each with an individual bedroom, the temporary homes are impressively and comfortably equipped with memory foam mattresses, luxurious leather furniture, flat screen televisions throughout, and other amenities that make it easy to relax after a hard day at the base. Best of all, these spectacular accommodations never cost residents a dime, since they can be booked at the per diem rate each receives for living off base.

Those interested in learning more about the best crash pad Altus has to offer, then, can do so at the American Fly Boys Housing website, where further information and helpful maps and pictures can be found. American Fly Boys Housing would once again like to congratulate Conrad for winning the recent iPad giveaway promotion and thanks all the contest's entrants for their participation. Starting now, those who like the company's Facebook page will be entered for a chance to win the next iPad Mini giveaway scheduled for Friday, April 3rd.
