November 14, 2015 (FPRC) -- SPRINGFIELD, Ga. – Tak tse Profit admits to have given up on mankind's chances of ever correcting its errant path towards obvious self destruction, on the whole. But his young son reminded him that he has no right to give up on mankind and that it is his responsibility to be his brother's keeper. This realization prompted Profit to write “Etiam Tu: Eradicating Hatred” (published by Xlibris).

Profit believes that hatred is an ever present and continual threat to the continued existence of the human race. This book seeks to raise mankind's awareness to the many manifestations of hatred and its influences on everyone's life. It attempts to educate and inspire readers to embark on or join a movement within humanity to eliminate this threat once and for all.

“The dominance of the culture of hatred is obvious and the majority of the entire human population must want that to change,” Profit points out. “Our world is in obvious turmoil with war, aggression, violence and strife all around us. This book seeks to resolve these issues.”

Profit hopes that after reading “Etiam Tu: Eradicating Hatred,” everyone will seek peace, participate in the solution of worldly issues and eliminate the culture of hatred surrounding mankind.
