Sydney, Australia -- January 13, 2016 (FPRC) -- Australia is one of the most beautiful countries on earth, but because of its remoteness, it relies on immigrants to fill the gaps in their own talent pool. One such gap is in technicians and mechanics, and there are lucrative opportunities for qualified professionals looking to emigrate. Techs On The Move has now created a new website to better find Mechanic Jobs in Australia, making it easier than ever for highly skilled technicians to move to the country with a work permit to experience these great roles.

The new and improved website is fully responsive, allowing access from any device. The website features an easy to navigate job board that enables people to quickly find the right opportunities for them. There are featured employers who describe why they work with Techs On The Move to source the finest techs in the world. There is an easy application process where applicants are supported throughout by the team, as well as information about Techs On The Move.

To celebrate the launch of the new and improved website, the Techs On The Move Team have created a free e-book resource entitled, "Moving to Australia Demystified with our 7 Step Techs on the Move". The guide can be downloaded directly from the website.

A spokesperson for Techs On The Move explained, "We operate unlike any other service out there, which means we had to have a website that was custom fit to our unique approach and way of doing things. Our new website is the most comprehensive resource centre yet, and is packed with great new features that make looking for and taking advantage of opportunities in Australia the easiest it has ever been. All this, backed by the same outstanding support and client relationships we are known for, make us the best possible way for technicians to relocate to Australia for work."
