February 21, 2017 (FPRC) -- HADDONFIELD, NJ — Elena Ciccotelli, CEO and Co-Founder of Take It Home, announced that it has been one of ten companies chosen to present its new business model at the Wharton Club of New Jersey Entrepreneur Showcase and Pitch Event, held February 23 2017, starting at 5:30pm, at the Newark Office of McCarter & English LLP.

Take it Home is an on-demand prepared gourmet food platform, delivering vacuum sealed cooked meals and unique food products to customer's doorsteps. "We are an online mobile marketplace that lets users order 'fine dining' selections, with locally sourced ingredients, prepared by our chefs and 'guest chefs' signature dishes from well-known local restaurants," Ciccotelli stated. "We also feature new food products from local culinary entrepreneurs with our association with the Dorrance H. Hamilton Center for Culinary Enterprises in Philadelphia, PA." Take it Home also offers corporate catering, and, says Ciccotelli, "if you like what we are serving you, you can order it at the event from your mobile phone, to have it delivered to your door."

Take it Home is a business with an aligned mission of "doing well by doing good." For every meal purchased, either online or through catering, one meal is donated to the local food bank. Ciccotelli emphasizes, "so while you are enjoying your pre-prepared gourmet dinner we deliver, you know that someone else is also enjoying a meal that they otherwise would not have had, without your generosity – 'doing well never tasted so good.'
