A new YouTube tool has launched helping people to rank their videos more effectively even without an extensive knowledge of SEO. Called Tuberank Jeet, it is created by Cyril Gupta as a way for every YouTube user, regardless of their experience, to achieve more views, more subscribers and more traffic to their channel. In addition to this, it can present businesses with a way to use this network to increase views on their homepage through targeted leads.

The site explains that Tuberank Jeet offers expert guidance on how to rank videos quickly and easily. This means that marketers selling products and channel owners wanting to gain more traction in the competitive market can do so.

YouTube has exploded in popularity in recent years, with more people using it than ever before. Video itself has become the most in demand form of content consumption, and now YouTube has over a billion users every day.

This means that over the course of a month, hundreds of millions of hours of video are consumed. More than half of this comes from mobile devices, and on mobile alone YouTube reaches more 18-34 year olds and 18-49 year olds than any other cable network available in the US.

With such a vast audience, it can be hard to stand out, and many videos simply disappear into the sheer mass of content being produced, and barely register a ripple.

For videos to be found, they need to be well structured and SEO friendly, with the right keyword usage. There are a number of other natural factors that go into ranking well and getting more viewers as well.

This includes video length, in addition to engagement metrics like number of seconds viewed, comments made, likes clicked, and social shares.

Tuberank Jeet shows people how they can capitalize on every facet of video marketing and creation to help engage with the most people and get as many people as possible visiting the channel. Additional information is available at: <http://muncheye.com/cyril-gupta-tuberank-jeet-3>.
