The Rockford lawyer offers free consultations for anyone who thinks they would benefit from a lawyer in their corner. These may be people who have handled their own arraignment, obtained a copy of the police report, and taken the required blood or breath test to examine their blood alcohol level.

Getting a lawyer at this stage of the process can help to determine the strength or weakness of the accused's case. Sometimes people can miss something important, but even if they haven't, it can be beneficial to get an expert's opinion on how best to proceed.

In addition to this, even when people have only just been accused of DUI, it can be important to get in touch with a DUI lawyer as fast as possible. As soon as someone is placed under arrest for the suspicion of DUI, they are advised to contact an expert to help cut to the truth of the matter and the legal facts in their case.

At this point, the lawyer will take over the process for the accused, working closely with them to build a case that helps to defend them and get the best possible result.

If someone does have to go to trial, then the lawyer will help them prepare for it, and work with them to ensure that the outcome is as favorable as possible.

On the Rockford Illinois DUI attorney's YouTube channel, a number of videos are available, helping people to get the support they need. Further details can be found by calling 815-315-1288.
