Mommy Please, the maker of the popular 125 piece play food set, announced that as they enter the second year of sales for their play food set, they would like to see a continued increase in customer reviews.

"We have had such an amazing first year of sales," explained Mommy Please spokesperson Elsie Murphy. "On top of that, we have received some fantastic feedback from customers. Some of that feedback has come in the form of customer reviews on our Amazon.com listing. This has been a very important tool for us. New potential customers can read those reviews and then decided if they want to purchase our product. During the past month, we have had over 15 new five-star reviews from verified customers. We want to encourage our customers to continue leaving reviews."

Currently, the Mommy Please 125 piece play food set has over 390 positive reviews on Amazon.com, averaging 4.7 out of 5 stars. With the new marketing goal, Mommy Please plans to reach 600 reviews of 4.5 stars or better before the end of the year holiday shopping season. One recent five-star reviewer wrote "Excellent product. Shipped fast. Kids in the daycare use it more than any other toys. I like that everything is plastic including milk carton and other containers. Easy to disinfect. I recommend for any one that has a day care."
