Further delving into these figures reveals the majority of households involved in the uptick are losing square footage as a result of their moves. In light of this development, representative Hui Xu has launched the company's latest special offers.

Said Xu, "We're definitely seeing more people moving household across North Island, and they're often at a loss for space once they arrive at their new homes. At Cube Storage, we cater to both those needs and more with our moving and mobile storage solutions. From the beginning, we've been committed to offering the most stress-free and affordable options in the types of storage Auckland residents typically need. Our new specials are an extension of those goals, and we hope they'll make packing, moving and de-cluttering experiences even more pleasant for those in need of our services."

As noted on the Cube Storage website, the company offers a number of moving and storage solutions with a focus on mobile storage units. While professional packing services are available, customers interested in do-it-yourself removal also have the option of carrying out their own packing, loading and unloading in regard to furniture and storage boxes. Packing blankets and ties are provided free of charge with each storage unit. Upon being filled, units are transported to customers' new locations or held at the Cube Storage facility.

Among the special offers currently in place is free delivery for customers in Auckland's city limits and its eastern suburbs. Complimentary packing and storage are also being offered to those within the company's free delivery zone and in need of storage for at least three months. Anyone ordering more than one cube may likewise receive subsequent units for half price. Additional details and offers can be found on the company website.

Xu concluded, "We're your all-in-one moving and storage partner providing packing services and supplies, DIY removals, moving and mobile storage. We've made revolutionising the way people move and store their belongings our mission, and our promotional offers are simply the latest step in achieving this overall goal.
