TCW Consulting Video Agency has launched a new video commercial service so businesses in any niche can harness the power of video to get more visitors and customers. This helps to improve brand awareness and recognition. Bonaire, United States - March 14, 2017 /PressCable/ -- A new video commercial service has been launched by TCW Consulting Video Agency, which prides itself on helping its clients to get more visitors to their site and increasing the sales of products and services. The company specializes in helping online businesses to get noticed in an increasingly competitive market, with video services that can be tailored to any niche.

More information can be found at: <http://video.tcwconsultingfirm.com>.

The site explains that the goal of TCW Consulting Video Agency is to provide its clients with a high quality product that will help take them to the next level. They can also work with each client to market commercials, getting videos noticed on YouTube, Google, Facebook and more.

With the rise of social sites like YouTube, Twitter and Facebook, video has become more popular than ever. As a way to digest information it is second to none, with more people than ever before watching videos online every day.

Studies have shown that YouTube viewing figures increase by 100% each year, showing just how potent videos can be to a business. In addition to this, videos are easy to share, so companies who create effective video commercials are more likely to find more customers through social sharing on high profile sites.

Because of this, they can increase their brand awareness and reputation, harnessing the power of video to get more people visiting their site and buying their products.

TCW explains that consumers like, use and remember video more than any other form of presentation. The presence of video affects the most important SEO Ranking factor of a website, and video can be seen as evidence of quality content, helping to send signals to search engines like Google that the page contains rich relevant media.

This in turn helps the website to rank higher, boosting its visibility and getting more customers, regardless of market niche.

Businesses wanting to make the most of this and get videos on their site to enhance their content and boost user engagement can get in touch with TCW Consulting Video Agency on the URL above.
