The Car Keeper in Phoenix, Arizona announced the opening of a state of the art auto spa and detailing facility to meet the growing need for automotive exterior and interior care. Phoenix, United States - March 14, 2017 /PressCable/ -- It's obvious how people always wants to look beautiful, and they extend this interest also to their cars by making them look beautiful. However, that cannot always happen since the beauty, and the gloss of cars begin to disappear slowly due to environmental and work conditions. With a great desire to help bring back the gloss and fresh look of cars and other automobiles, the Car Keeper has announced the opening of its new auto spa and detailing center in Phoenix.

"Auto detailing is normally practiced all throughout the world, and it involves polishing the outer appearance only, explained Kenneth Marquis. "Though we extend this to the interiors of the cars also as we will wax, polish and do a thorough cleaning of your automobiles essentially to make it look sleek and beautiful. We will correct the paint defects, and ensure that the scratches and other marks on the exterior of the automobile are polished completely."

The Car Keeper auto spa and detailing services are handled meticulously by professionals to ensure the beauty of vehicles are restored, and people's investment is protected. Also, they are experts at preparing vehicles to make sure car owners get paid the most on their used vehicle whenever they want to sell. The Car Keeper will detail vehicles before it gets appraised and they know what appraisers are looking for and will maximize the price of vehicles in their care.

"Maintenance of the car not only keeps it in good condition, but it also protects the vehicle for years to come, thus enhancing its value as it ages," the Car Keeper team added.

The Car Keeper experienced staff provides every customer with the high-quality service they deserve while paying close attention to their individual needs. They do not believe in a 'one-size-fits-all' solution - The Car Keeper is dedicated to providing each of their customers with the perfect solution that suits their needs.
