Montem has created detailed and informative consumer advice for pocket blankets and hiking sticks, helping those with a love for the outdoors get the best products available. New York, NY, United States - March 14, 2017 /MarketMedia/ -- Hiking is becoming more popular as urban-raised millennials develop a taste for adventure, and seeing the great wide world that lies beyond their high walls. As a result, there is increasing demand for hiking equipment and accessories, to help people make the most of the outdoors in a safe and easy way. Montem is a manufacturer of high quality hiking gear, created by passionate hikers to make the activity more accessible to all. They have just published two new and comprehensive buying guides, providing expert advice that can inform consumer purchasing decisions.

Their first new guide, "How To Choose Trekking Poles And Hiking Staffs" aims to get to grips with the support people use while hiking. Trekking poles can make walking far easier on the knees and hips and enable people to walk farther, for longer. The guide offers a comprehensive breakdown of the considerations consumers should make to identify and select a quality product that will serve them well.

The second new guide, "How to Choose Camping Blankets and Outdoor Blankets - Expert Advice" acts in a similar way, describing the components of a camping blanket, and analysing the entire market to show people the most important elements they should seek to find in any product they decide to purchase. Both guides are designed to give independent and actionable advice to consumers.

A spokesperson for Montem explained, "We are very pleased to have introduced these two new guides for the benefit of our regular blog readers. Hiking poles and blankets are an essential part of any hiker's equipment, and so it was important that we ensure as many consumers as possible have the right information to make informed choices. Our guides are full and comprehensive and written by experienced, expert hikers. As such, we have provided information our readers can trust and rely upon."

About Montem: Montem offer outdoor gear designed and developed by hikers, for hikers.
