Project-4 is a luxury home development, design and build company that specialise in loft conversions. They have over 30 years of experience in the industry and provide in house architecture. They state that they can manage home developments and loft conversions from start to finish, providing excellent and smooth service.

The new website features a services page that details what the company can offer their clients. Some of the many expert services they provide include loft conversions, home extensions, kitchen design, bespoke loft furniture, staircases and project management among many others.

The site explains that they are loft conversion specialists and know how valuable a good loft conversion can be to the homeowner. They state that with good solid planning and getting the basics right from the beginning, a loft conversion can add something special to the property.

Project-4 say that almost any loft is convertible and that they offer a full planning and regulations package that covers every detail from start to finish. These include full architectural plans and planning permission.

The site gives examples of the different types of dormer styles that are available and describe which ones would suit different style properties. They also have the option of Velux loft conversions that allow light into the loft space without the addition of a dormer. These windows can be highly sophisticated and can be fitted with thermostats and rain sensors which will open and close the windows accordingly.

Pictures of finished projects and custom made loft furniture can also be found on the site. Those wishing to find out more can visit the site on the link provided above.
