Canadian Virtual Gurus has established an extraordinary reputation north of the border, and is now able to assist US businesses to achieve more, through specialist remote delegation. Edmonton, Canada - March 16, 2017 /MarketersMedia/ -- Virtual assistants are becoming more and more common throughout the world, as offices become less necessary for productive working. Virtual assistants can also provide specialist assistance in many administrative and online capacities, meaning businesses need only pay these specialists for the time they need, rather than keeping them on retainer. Canadian Virtual Gurus is a popular provider of these services, and has helped Canadian small businesses punch above their weight for years. They are now extending their services to help small businesses in the US.

The US is a huge potential market for Canadian Virtual Gurus, and they have made their full suite of services available, including virtual assistance, virtual receptionist services, administration and team assistance, social media management and web development services, including design, updates, contents and plugins.

These services are broken down in full on the website. These services are perfect for independent consultants, small start-up companies, and established businesses alike. Thanks to their virtual nature, US clients can benefit as readily from these services as Canadians. Canadian Virtual Gurus has headhunted and recruited highly experienced consultants to handle this increase in market size. A spokesperson for Canadian Virtual Gurus explained, "We are excited to be able to expand our services into the US for the first time. The US is home to some of the most exciting ideas and entrepreneurs in the world, but these ideas need support and nurturing to succeed. Virtual assistance allows for truly flexible working, giving people exactly the support they need, when they need it. This gives businesses the opportunity to grow in the ways they need to. Our new hires allow us to be flexible and scalable enough to handle the uptake from the world's largest economy, and we look forward to doing so."
