Reza Aprian has launched Let's Animate 3, an animation studio that can help businesses and individuals in any niche to boost engagement through powerful video animations. Animations can also be exported to Adobe After Effects. Wanchai,, Hong Kong - March 18, 2017 /PressCable/ --

A new animation kit for businesses and individuals has been launched by Reza Aprian, helping people to harness the power of video to increase engagement on their site regardless of business niche. In addition to this, it can help to promote sales of new services and products, and encourage social sharing so that businesses can increase brand awareness and reputation.

More information is available at: <http://letslook.at/LETSANIMATE3>.

Let's Animate 3 is a full blown animation studio providing quality character animation and background illustration, helping people to create animations of all varieties. Packed into one product, it offers the chance to create characters of different nationalities, races, occupation and gender.

In addition to this, the software is flexible enough that it's provided in standard GIF, SWF, and high quality transparent PNG so that it projects can be exported to work with other platforms like Adobe After Effect to enhance animations even further.

Static content can also be achieved, with PNG sequence images that people can use for their website, or in combination with sketching software like Easy Sketch Pro.

Video has become the most engaging medium online, with more people than ever before using it as their primary source of information. Animation like that provided by Let's Animate 3 can help businesses in any niche to advertise their products and services with highly interactive animations.

This can help to encourage visitors to a business's website to stay, engaging with the content rather than clicking away. In today's climate, when it's so easy for anyone to leave a website in seconds, it's of utmost importance to keep them sticking around for as long as possible.

Entertaining animations can also be easily shared across social networking sites like Facebook and Twitter, where they can be picked up and broadcasted to a huge network of people. This helps to improve brand awareness and reach new customers.
