Buying used auto parts has long been a useful, more affordable alternative to purchasing brand new products that often come at prohibitive prices. With salvage yards constantly offering a wide range of auto parts and auto brands providing increasingly expensive new products, many vehicle owners are looking for reliable replacements from used vehicles.

The main misconception that used parts are unsafe and unreliable is proved wrong by the many car owners who have successfully recycled used parts. Just Truck and Van is a Phoenix salvage yard providing a wide range of used auto parts for trucks and vans, and it has recently updated its services to promote responsible auto part recycling.

The Phoenix company offers two used parts purchasing options, full-serve and self-serve. For clients choosing to select and remove the desired parts by themselves, Just Truck and Van currently provides a 25% discount, as well as offering complete computerized inventory with make and model interchange options.

Interested buyers can also opt to have their parts removed by professional technicians and prepared for pick-up. The company's full-serve auto parts services include professional part removal and preparation, full customer service, make and model consultation, part cleaning, testing and certification, as well as a standard 101-days warranty.

Through its website, the company currently provides full access to its inventory for both self-serve and full-serve options. The website also provides visitors with the possibility to search the salvage yard's inventory for the desired used auto part.

Just Truck and Van also provides vehicle owners with a reliable alternative to selling their vehicles, currently buying a wide range of truck and van models.
