Sydney based bathroomware distributor, Bathe, announced in a recent communique that they have just commenced stocking the energy efficient Bathroom Butler Heated Towel Rail. Leichhardt, Australia - March 19, 2017 /PressCable/ -- Heated towel rails have long been considered a luxury for installation in only top end designer bathrooms. The advancements in technology and design have not only made the heated towel rail affordable but with variable heat settings make the latest models extremely energy efficient.

The Bathroom Butler Heated Towel Rail has the essential addition; a secret switch. The elegantly built-in Personal Temperature Selection Switch (PTSelect or PTS) has been developed to give the freedom to select preferred temperatures and to effortlessly switch the heated towel rail on and off in order to reduce running costs.

Claire Cassey, Bathe Marketing Manager said, "We are delighted to now distribute the very attractive and energy efficient Bathroom Butler Heated Towel Rail. It's a high-quality finish and the incorporation of modern technology in the state of the art designs adds a luxury touch to any bathroom."

In 2017, heated towel rails are used for more than just towel warmers, which was the predominant use of them when early designs first appeared. Today they are used for efficient towel drying and are designed with the environment in mind, with the heated towel rail running on very little electricity and negating the need to use a high-powered tumble dryer. Couple that with fewer wash cycles and the savings will be much more than just water and electricity.
