Mommy Please announced today that their best-selling and popular play food set would remain the only product created and sold by their company. Atlanta, United States - March 20, 2017 /PressCable/ --

During a recent meeting, Mommy Please announced that the company had decided that due to the popularity of their 125-piece play food set, the company would focus on the production of that product. The play food set contains both healthy and non-healthy food choices such as bananas, apples, grapes, carrots, corn, bread, milk, juice, eggs, pizza, ice cream, asparagus, peppers, potatoes, hamburger, hot dog, watermelon, cucumber and more.

"I know this may seem backward to some. Our play food set has been successful and very popular. Most would assume that we would expand on this success into other product lines," stated Mommy Please spokesperson Elsie Murphy. "We do not believe this is the best approach. We intend to focus instead on this single, successful product. Why dilute our efforts into areas that are unproven? We want to make this product the best possible play food set available."

The Mommy Please 125-piece play food set is the #1 play food set on Amazon.com for sale. Over 390 reviews have been left, 96% of customers state they like their toy food set. One verified purchaser wrote, "Top quality product with good-sized food. Nice assortment including fruits and vegetables plus hot dogs, Pringles and even a waffle with syrup! Highly recommend!" Another added "Excellent product. Shipped fast. Kids in the daycare use it more than any other toys. I like that everything is plastic including milk carton and other containers. Easy to disinfect. I recommend for any one that has a day care."

Available for purchase exclusively on Amazon.com, the Mommy Please play food set is currently priced at $23.97, over 40% off the full retail price. Amazon offers free shipping on any purchase of $49 or more.
