

Thermalabs launches all-in-one mini-airbrush kit

Thermalabs has launched a new, comprehensive mini-airbrushing kit.

March 24, 2017 (FPRC) -- Cosmetics firm Thermalabs has launched a brand new mini-airbrushing kit. This is a comprehensive machine that can be used for all airbrushing purposes, from cake decoration to nail art and tattoos. The machine comes barely a month after the company launched a similar product going by the name Inagua. It appears that Thermalabs is keen to dominate the airbrushing market.

Thermalabs is an American firm that manufactures self-tanners and other cosmetics products. The company started out some three years ago, introducing an organic self-tanner that sold like a hotcake in the market. Thermalabs has thus far furnished the global cosmetics market with nearly three dozen releases. While most of these are self-tanning lotions and tanning accessories, the company has also diversified its product portfolio. The firm today owns three distinct sub-brands that manufacture various products each. For instance, the company's Supremasea branch is in charge of skincare products based on Dead Sea mineral salts. Thermalabs Tent World creates beach tents for outdoor use, while Thermalabs Organic Healthcare produces 100% bio-organic formulations based on naturally occurring herbs, seeds, and plants.

Thermalabs all-in-one mini airbrushing kit has an auto start function for easier application and comes with rechargeable batteries. According to Thermalabs, the machine also supports adjustable spray patterns and a low maintenance nozzle. The company has said that it operates silently and delivers outstanding results to its users.

The launch of this machine makes 3 the total number of airbrushing systems that the company has launched thus far. Others include the Samana Art airbrushing machine, and the Inagua spray tanning system. Thermalabs says that its airbrushing machines are versatile and can be used for diverse purposes from painting tattoos to nail art and even cake decoration.

Alex Howard, who's a senior marketing manager at the company, said, "Thermalabs is today delighted to launch its brand new all-in-one mini airbrushing machine. This is a lightweight machine that'll allow our company to deliver value to users, and give the competition a new benchmark for quality. This specific system sports a low maintenance nozzle runs silently and supports adjustable spray patterns. It adds to three the number of airbrushing kits we have available in the market. The new system will ship with a compact carry case and other bonuses that are unspecified at this time. Customers who are interested in this machine can get it via Amazon.com, or via our official site – thermalabs.com. Stay tuned to Thermalabs for much more soon...."
