Targeting those who struggle with joint pain, inflammation, or arthritis, Portland-based company CopperJoint releases a new infomercial describing how their Copper-Infused Compression Sleeves alleviate pain, speed recovery, and enhance performance.

Portland, United States - April 18, 2017 /MarketMedia/ -- CopperJoint proudly released a new infomercial showcasing their copper compression sleeves which are made to enhance performance, speed joint recovery, and help anyone who suffers from joint pain or inflammation. From elite athletes to active grandparents, CopperJoint is made for anyone who wants to alleviate pain associated with injury and arthritis or simply wants to recover more quickly from strenuous activity. The video explains how CopperJoint uses a four-way compression design and "graduated compression to dilate arteries for increased oxygenated blood flow, constrict veins to eliminate lactic acid buildup, and comfortably support your muscles to reduce fatigue from shock and vibration." The video also highlights how the genuine copper ions inside a CopperJoint sleeve eliminate odor and kill microbes, keeping users stink-free while wearing their compression garments.

CopperJoint's patented breathable, high-performance fabric keeps joints at optimal temperature. Their anti-itch UPF 50+ material stays warm in cold temperatures, cooler in the heat, and protects from harmful UV rays. The narrator of the infomercial explains that this patented fabric "wicks away moisture to keep your skin dry, comfortable and itch-free. Now you can use your compression sleeve again, again, and again while staying germ-free, fungus-free, and stink-free."

CopperJoint offers copper-infused compression wear for every joint or major pain point from your hands and wrists, down to your calves, knees, and ankles. They also have copper compression socks, designed for athletes, travelers, diabetics, weekend warriors, and just about anyone else.

"I love these!" a CopperJoint customer comments. "CopperJoint helps my swelling and pain. I have vein issues and these are the best compression sleeves I have ever owned."

CopperJoint's performance wear is made for everyone from the toughest athletes to the toughest data-entry clerks with carpal tunnel. Those interested in learning more or purchasing a CopperJoint compression sleeve may visit CopperJoint.com or find CopperJoint products on Amazon.com.
