The global articulated bus market analyst says bus transit is gaining popularity across the world as transit modes like light rail schemes require a high investment. The bus transit is seen as a cost-effective solution to address urban transport needs like comfort, reliability, accessibility, and ease of use. This is leading to the demand for high-capacity buses, particularly articulated buses. The articulated bus features more doors and a greater proportion of step-free access, which makes the articulated buses superior to their non-articulated counterparts.

The following companies as the key players in the global articulated bus market: Daimler, MAN, Solaris Bus & Coach, and Volvo. Other prominent vendors in the market are: Ashok Leyland, BYD, New Flyer, Otokar, Scania, and Tata Motors.
