

First Response Drainage Move Over To WinCan CCTV Systems

As part of improvements to our growing company First Response now use WinCan CCTV System to ever improve our services and to identify drain problems more quickly.

May 26, 2017 (FPRC) -- There are of course many reasons to have a CCTV survey carried out to inspect the condition of your drainage system. Building surveys or just persistent / ongoing drainage problems, even trying to locate entry points of vermin like rats.

It is also prudent as a home buyer to have a CCTV survey carried out before purchasing a property. Defective drains are responsible for a staggering 40% of subsidence cases, so it is important to have an accurate survey carried out before you end up with underlying problems that are costly to correct.

Why we use WinCan

We use the Wincan CCTV System probably the best drain survey system there is. Wincan comes with the ultimate in CCTV pipe inspection reporting software and standard compliant inspection data, WinCan is now the most preferred sewer inspection software and becoming the industry standard.

WinCan helps First Response identify trends, pinpoint hotspots so we can prioritise maintenance alongside standard inspection. For more complex systems we can even use inspection data to build up a 3D model and generate CAD exports / drawings useful for planning / re-structuring drain system / layout and design.
